I, Maria Ecklund, would like to report an incident that I witnessed today here at Wellington Chew. A young lady with a disability was sitting at the first far East table near the stage. Her mother and grandmother (a member of W.C.) were mingling with other members when Theresa Valdez approached her and said, "Are you all going to stay because this is where I sit." At that point the young lady gathered her things and moved to another table and Theresa proceeded to sit there. I approached this lady and I asked her, "Did she tell you to move?", to which she replied, "No, that's okay."

So my understanding members here at Wellington Chew do not have assigned seats, nor do we pay to have reserved seating. Since and time again, it has been announced that we (members) are not to move persons or personal things from any table. All persons and their things should be respected!

I plea that this action be taken care of.

Thank you,
Maria Ecklund
