Project Abstract :

This project is requesting funds to purchase portable radios for the City of El Paso Police Department (EPPD). These portable radios will be issued to officers. By enhancing the EPPDs operational communications core capability, it will enhance the EPPD ability to carry out the response mission area when responding to acts of terrorism.

Problem Statement :

The City of El Paso Police Department must ensure the safety of its residents and travelers. In emergencies, such as a terrorist attack, they might need to mobilize all officers but with current radio interference issues in the area older radios are gravely impacted and critical communication cannot be sent or received between the officers and dispatch. The Rio Grande Council of Governments THIRA identifies terrorism as a threat on page 8.

Supporting Data :

The City of El Paso has been impacted by radio interference coming from Mexico for over a year. This interference has been reported to the FCC and State Department but continues affect officers throughout the city. The current portable radios do not have LTE capability and during times of interference they are unable to send or receive radio transmissions, potentially placing the community and the officers in danger.

Project Approach & Activities:

The EPPD intends on upgrading portable radios to ones that have LTE capability and subscriptions, which will allow the officers in time of radio interference to jump on LTE and continue to rely critical radio transmissions.

Capacity & Capabilities:

The City of El Paso is currently at an interoperability level 4, ensuring complete radio coverage throughout the city. While the El Paso Police Department (EPPD) has enough radios to meet the needs of its shifts, operational effectiveness has been critically impacted by radio interference from Mexico. Currently, 90% of the department's radios lack LTE compatibility, which significantly hampers communication during periods of radio interference. This limitation prevents the transmission and receipt of critical radio communications, creating operational challenges. While the current system is sufficient under normal conditions, it falls short during times of radio interference, highlighting the urgent need for upgraded, LTE-compatible communication equipment.

Performance Management :

The El Paso Police Department (EPPD) will measure the success of this project by assessing improvements in communication reliability and operational effectiveness during incidents of radio interference. The primary goal of this project is to enhance the department's communication capabilities by upgrading to LTE-compatible portable radios, ensuring seamless connectivity and uninterrupted transmissions even during periods of cross-border interference. Objectives include reducing communication failures, improving response times, and enhancing officer safety through reliable communication. EPPD will collect, track, and maintain data on the frequency and duration of communication disruptions, response times to critical incidents, and officer-reported communication issues before and after the radio upgrades. Regular performance evaluations will be conducted by analyzing incident reports, communication logs, and feedback from field officers to ensure the upgraded radios meet operational needs and contribute to achieving the department's communication goals throughout the grant period.

Target Group :

50 officers of the EPPD will be the main beneficiaries of this project. Additionally, it will enhance safety for residents and travelers in both the City of El Paso and the broader El Paso County area.

Evidence-Based Practices:

The need for upgraded LTE-compatible portable radios is supported by evidence highlighting the critical role of reliable communication in law enforcement operations, particularly during high-stress or cross-jurisdictional incidents. Research and best practices in public safety communications, such as findings from the National Public Safety Telecommunications Council (NPSTC), emphasize the importance of LTE technology to mitigate interference, enhance signal reliability, and provide seamless communication in challenging environments. Studies have shown that LTE-capable radios significantly improve communication continuity by providing access to both traditional radio frequencies and cellular networks, ensuring redundancy in case of system failure or interference. El Paso Police Department's experience with operational disruptions caused by cross-border radio interference further underscores the necessity of adopting this proven technology. Upgrading to LTE-compatible radios aligns with nationally recognized best practices and will ensure the department remains operationally effective, responsive, and resilient under all conditions.

Project Activities Information

Introduction

This section contains questions about your project. It is very important for applicants to review their funding announcement for guidance on how to fill out this section. Unless otherwise specified, answers should be about the EXPECTED activities to occur during the project period.
